Should you insure your wedding? - By Jeanette van der Merwe

Any comprehensive wedding planning should include insurance. It is imperative that you are insured before you pay any deposits as these cannot be recovered if the service provider should turn out to be fraudulent or becomes bankrupt. In the case of venues, natural disasters such as fire or flood may strike at any time taking your deposit along with it.

It is also crucial to obtain wedding insurance when you consider hiring items, whether it be wedding attire, décor or other wedding supplies as you will have to pay the full replacement value should such items be damaged or lost. Also bear in mind that you may be held financially liable for any injuries to guests or staff during your wedding as well as any damage to the venue. The presence of open flame candles and alcohol at weddings makes these incidents much more common than you would hope. Your service providers are protected, are you?

Why insure your wedding?

Your wedding should be the happiest day of your life. Months of planning should mean that you can enjoy the wedding of your dreams...but things can and do go wrong. What would you do if the dress gets damaged, the rings are lost or the photographs don't come out? It happens and could happen to you and ruin your special day.
