Bruce and Marlene work in the entertainment, food and beverage industry and had seen their fair share of beautiful weddings. The classic white wedding would just not do, and they decided they wanted something different, so 'Bubbles & Butterflies, Top Hats & Tails' were the order of the day.

They decided to go with cornflour blue, white and silver as their colour scheme. Tables were draped in cornflour blue table cloths with white chair covers, blue butterfly tiebacks and silver candelabra. Bridesmaids wore blue dresses with blue feather fans and the flower girls in silver and white dresses with blue butterfly wings. The groomsmen wore black top hats and tails with blue waistcoats and bow ties, while Bruce reversed the attire and wore white tails. Millions of bubbles replaced the traditional confetti which made their ceremony even more magical. Everything came together on the day, and the addition of photographic props worked perfectly!

The cost implications were minimal as they did most of the décor themselves, with the help of family and friends. Marlene suggests that if you are looking at doing something 'out of the box', start planning in advance, using magazines and websites for inspiration. Take ownership of your day and make the most of the help offered by family and friends.
