

Darren & Daniella Putter

12 March 2010

Darren and Danielle wanted a day that was true to who they were as people, a day that would emulate what they enjoyed in life and most importantly, they wanted family and friends who were important to them.

Together, they adopted the 'kiss' philosophy—less is more! An outdoor, easy, but very classy celebration with only the ceremony and the food having a time stipulation—everything else was to flow how and when it would. The day was informal, comfortable and spectacular.

Oakfield offered them the flexible platform that they wanted with their ceremony being held outside under the Gazebo, after which guests relaxed on blankets and pillows under the sprawling trees playing board games and being entertained by jazz musicians, until lunch was served. The celebrations and dancing went on well into the evening and a day which they would happily enjoy again.
