Craig is from the picturesque Edinburgh on the Northern end of the UK and Janine is from Pietermaritzburg on the southern end of Africa. Little did she know as a girl growing up in 'sleepy hollow' that she would meet the love of her life on the other side of the world, but their lives lead them to London where they met, and became inseparable.

We were on a skiing trip in Canada when Craig hurt his leg on the slopes. We moved to the side of the slope, away from the other skiers still zooming down the mountain, and sat in the snow surrounded by fir trees. As Craig told me he wanted to spend the rest of his life with me, he opened a box which he pulled from his pocket, and asked me to marry him. The leg injury was just a rouse! I was happy beyond words: "Yes, I'll marry you!" and then we skied down the rest of the mountain, as if on Cloud 9.

We got married in summer at beautiful Oakfield Farm. The Scottish boys wore their kilts, not exactly suitable under the blazing African sun, but they looked good. I walked down the aisle to the bagpipes, adding a further Scottish touch to include Craig's heritage in the celebrations.

Everything went smoothly, and we received so many compliments from our guests on how much they enjoyed the day. Once the initial nerves we'd felt, before the ceremony, had disappeared, the day just flew by in a whirl of laughter, connecting with our friends and family, and dancing. We were in our element, it really was the perfect day of which we have wonderful memories.
